

Are you prepared to repel intruders?

Keep what's inside your network to yourself with Mandala's Managed Security Services

It's the modern business paradox. You need your network to communicate with the outside world – customers, suppliers, partners, other locations and many others. Yet each portal is an opportunity for unauthorized and potentially devastating intrusions.

You need to protect your network, and the more sites you have, the greater the need. Sometimes the task sounds daunting, especially for small and medium sized companies, particularly if you have multiple branches, remote users or telecommuters.

Hiring your own Security specialist and purchasing all the necessary software and hardware can be a financial burden. Plus, after you've made a significant initial capital investment, the costs don't end. Today's hackers and troublemakers are always inventing new ways to circumvent security systems. This means all that hardware and software will become obsolete very quickly.

Turn to Mandala Managed Security Services. We can provide the protection and security you need so you can attend to managing and growing your core business.

Reliable Network Security for today and tomorrow.

When you choose Mandala and Check Point for your Managed Security Systems, you are tapping into two of the most knowledgeable, experienced and comprehensive companies of their kind. We have been providing network security since long before there was a world wide web.

We also choose the very best partners to provide you with a full suite of security services. Together, we can keep the intruders out while allowing all your work stations – in all locations – to talk to each other.

What you get from Mandala Managed Security Services

Total assurance. Your network has to continue to run smoothly at all times. We routinely detect potential health problems. We take your security imperatives and devise extremely effective rule-sets.

Complete control. We will advise you on what Security Services best suit your needs, but ultimately, you control what you want, you set the parameters and you set the policies. We make sure you get the precise security you want.

Breadth of Knowledge. Because we work with many organizations, we can more easily identify new threats and emerging threats and take steps to counter them.

Affordable peace of mind. We make the recurring capital investments in hardware and in continuously upgrading software. This allows us to offer you the full range of Managed Security Services at an affordable price.
